

AHRC and the Global Challenges Research Fund

Recognising the centrality of the human experience is essential to addressing global challenges

The AHRC is developing its strategy and approach for engaging with the Global Challenges Research Fund.

We have identified some initial overarching themes where we think the arts and humanities can make strong contributions to global challenges. These are indicative, not exhaustive.

The AHRC will support excellent research with impact using our well established funding mechanisms and through working in collaboration with other Research Councils and partners.

The cross-cutting issues are for example only and are not an exhaustive list.
